ACHC and TAHC Work to Support Home Care Providers

Cary, NC – Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC) announces its partnership with Tennessee Association for Home Care (TAHC), a nonprofit organization committed to supporting home care providers in Tennessee.

"This collaboration between ACHC and TAHC represents an expression of our shared values to elevate the importance of quality care, safety, and improved patient outcomes," said Susan Mills, ACHC Associate Clinical Director. "Together, we can better offer Tennessee home care providers valuable resources that help providers maintain compliance with industry best practices and improve business efficiencies."

The partnership gives Tennessee home health and hospice organizations and individual personal care professionals access to ACHC educational materials and services to enhance patient care. TAHC members are now eligible for special pricing on ACHC Accreditation for home health, hospice, and private duty, as well as discounts on educational workshops and workbooks that can help them prepare for accreditation.

"TAHC is intentional in its pursuit of strategic partnerships, and we are confident that this collaboration will bring great value to our members as they provide essential, high quality home care services to patients in Tennessee," said Maegan Carr Martin, TAHC Executive Director.

Established in 1981, TAHC represents the full spectrum of licensed home care organizations in Tennessee, including home health agencies, hospice organizations, and personal support service agencies. The Tennessee Association for Home Care exists to protect and advance every Tennessean's right to receive high-quality, cost-effective health care at home and in community-based settings through successful advocacy, regulatory support, effective education, and innovative leadership to its members. For more information, visit www.tnhomecare.org.

As a nationally recognized accreditor, ACHC offers a broad suite of home care accreditation solutions. ACHC has CMS deeming authority for Home Health, Hospice, Home Infusion Therapy, Renal Dialysis, and DMEPOS.

With over 30 years of experience promoting safe, quality patient care, ACHC is known for providing value, integrity, and the industry's best customer service. ACHC's flexible, educational approach gives providers options tailored to fit their needs. Providers receive assistance throughout the accreditation process and have access to personal Account Advisors, clinical and regulatory support, and program-specific educational resources. With no annual fees, ACHC offers cost-effective, competitive pricing to help providers achieve their accreditation goals.
