ACHC and UptimeHealth Partner to Support Healthcare Providers

Cary, NC – Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC) announces its partnership with UptimeHealth, a software solutions company that develops innovative products to simplify compliance practices and medical equipment management for healthcare organizations across the nation.

“ACHC and UptimeHealth share a commitment to improving quality of care for patients,” said Ryan Ragan, ACHC Business Development Manager. “In an expanding market, we understand the challenges healthcare providers face to continuously deliver the best care and services. Our mutual goal is to help providers maintain regulatory compliance and improve business operations more easily and effectively.”

“At UptimeHealth, we believe in forming synergistic partnerships with those who advocate for better patient safety and provider efficiency,” said Taylor Dunn, UptimeHealth Director of Strategic Growth. “ACHC exemplifies those values. They take healthcare standards to the next level of excellence, and we are proud to partner with their organization. With this partnership, we will work together to provide best-in-class compliance assistance to organizations affiliated with ACHC and be a helpful resource as they navigate the accreditation process.”

The collaboration gives UptimeHealth clients special pricing on ACHC Accreditation and discounts on ACHCU educational resources that support the accreditation process.

About UptimeHealth

UptimeHealth, headquartered in Boston, is a fast-growing software company that empowers providers to make patients' lives better. The company focuses on providing healthcare administrators and operators with simple-to-use software to manage compliance tasks, improve access to actionable data to increase operational efficiencies, and tap into the largest network of qualified biomed technicians to support their medical devices. UptimeHealth products were developed to support the movement of health care to in-home and outpatient settings.
