ACHC and ACA Renew Partnership to Support Pharmacies

CARY, N.C. – Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC) announced today it is renewing its partnership with the American College of Apothecaries (ACA), an organization dedicated to advancing independent pharmacy practices through education, innovation, mentoring, fellowship, and training.

“ACHC and ACA are mutually committed to supporting community-based pharmacies and compounding practices,” said Dr. Jon Pritchett, ACHC Program Director. “ACA’s role in the original establishment of PCAB Accreditation for compounding pharmacies points to their visionary leadership. For decades, ACA’s advocacy and educational efforts have empowered pharmacies, elevating quality of care and improving patient outcomes.”

The continued collaboration gives ACA members exclusive pricing on ACHC Pharmacy and PCAB Accreditation. Discounts on ACHCU educational resources also are available.

About ACA

ACA is dedicated to advancing independent community pharmacies through education, training, and mentoring. Fellows and members receive numerous opportunities to network and get discounts on ACA conferences, meetings, and educational resources.

ACA offers a way for pharmacists, pharmacy technicians, marketers, and students to connect with other pharmacy professionals to discuss areas of mutual interest and strengthen individual practices.
