Axxess Awarded Product Certification for Software Solutions

CARY, N.C. – Accreditation Commission for Health Care, Inc., (ACHC) has awarded product certification to Axxess for its home health, home care, and hospice software solutions. The certification confirms that Axxess products meet ACHC Standards in seven areas: administration, operations, fiscal management, human resources, provision of care and record management, quality, and risk management.

“By achieving certification of its software, Axxess has demonstrated its commitment to serving home health, home care, and hospice providers with high-quality solutions,” said Matthew Hughes, ACHC vice president of corporate strategy.

“ACHC Product Certification was designed with two goals: To build vendor understanding of accreditation requirements in the settings their products are designed to serve and to support ACHC accreditation customers by providing a simple way to validate that a given product is in compliance with ACHC Standards.”

“We are proud to be recognized with ACHC Product Certification and we will continue to nurture our partnership with ACHC,” added Chris Taylor, senior vice president of channel partnerships at Axxess. “This recognition is a testament to the hard work and industry knowledge we put into our software solutions. Our clients can have confidence that our solutions meet the highest regulatory and quality standards, which will positively impact their care delivery and patients’ experience.”
