ACHC and AAHC Partnership Supports Home-Based Care Providers

CARY, N.C. – Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC), a leading national healthcare accreditor, announced today it is partnering with the Arizona Association for Home Care (AAHC), a nonprofit organization that provides leadership, support, and resources to home-based care organizations in Arizona.

“ACHC and AAHC are mutually committed to enhancing quality of care and improving patient outcomes,” said Susan Mills, ACHC Senior Program Director. “AAHC is dedicated to ensuring providers have access to essential resources and information that drive continuous improvement and promote the best practices.”

“We are thrilled to be able to assist our members seeking accreditation through a strategic partnership with ACHC,” said Marie Fredette, CAE, AAHC Executive Director. “In order to meet the critical medical and social needs of Arizonans on their healthcare journeys, a robust community of qualified post-acute and home-based care providers is essential.”

The new collaboration allows AAHC members to receive preferred pricing on ACHC Accreditation for home care, home health and palliative care services delivered in the home. Discounts are also available on select resources offered by ACHCU, the education division of ACHC.

About AAHC

The Arizona Association for Home Care (AAHC) is a powerful and passionate advocate for home care providers, delivering vital care, services, and connections to patients and families in communities across Arizona.

As the only statewide, nonprofit membership organization for home health care providers, in-home care companies, and supporters in Arizona, AAHC provides leadership to Arizona’s home care industry through education, advocacy, resources, and partnerships that create innovative solutions to meet members’ needs and advance quality home care as an integral component of the health care delivery system.
