Partnership Renewal: ACHC and The Partnership

CARY, N.C. – Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC), a leading nonprofit accreditor, has renewed its collaboration with the Rhode Island Partnership for Home Care (The Partnership), the state's unified voice for home care, home health, and hospice providers.

"Working alongside The Partnership gives us an opportunity to continue supporting providers in a way that goes beyond checking a box," said Susan Mills, ACHC Senior Program Director. "Together, we can help organizations feel more confident in the accreditation process and better prepared to deliver the safe, compassionate care that Rhode Islanders deserve."

"Partnering with ACHC strengthens our shared commitment to quality, compliance and excellence in patient and client care. Their trusted accreditation standards, combined with our dedication to advancing home health and hospice providers, ensure that providers are well-equipped to deliver safe, effective and compassionate care. Together, we build confidence for providers, patients, clients and families", said Nicholas Oliver, MPA, CAE, Executive Director, Rhode Island Partnership for Home care.

Through this continued collaboration, RIPHC members will receive preferred pricing on ACHC Accreditation for home health, home care, and hospice programs, along with discounts on select resources offered by ACHCU, the educational division of ACHC.

About The Partnership

The Rhode Island Partnership for Home Care is a statewide trade association for organizations and individuals who provide or promote health care and supportive services in the home.

The role of the Partnership is to provide a unified voice in the promotion of standards of excellence in home care and hospice services and to advance the position of home care as an integral component of Rhode Island's acute care and long-term care health system.
